Safer sexWork Access Network is a safe and anonymous digital platform to provide help and information for Chinese women and girls who are at risk of violence and sexual exploitation. It provides practical information on health and wellbeing, safety, immigration and government policies.

The platform is on WeChat, the most popular social media app for Chinese speakers. Vulnerable women can access immediate advice without revealing their identities in avenues of help that requires their physical attendance including recourse to medical and police authorities.

All you need to know to reduce harm:

- Clinics access
- Emergency numbers
- Advice helplines
- Shelters and warm meals
- Rehab centres referrals and vacancies
- Housing and benefits advice
- Immigration and voluntary return information

SWAN will be a way for women, who would otherwise rather isolate themselves from any form of help, to open up initially to the society. SWAN is a contingent avenue for its users' immediate needs, while serving as a transition for women to gradually increase awareness of their options.
